

Aton International, Inc. Slashes Price for Newest Upgrade of Aton TN3270 for Windows XP Notebooks, Tablet PCs and Desktops

Summary: Expanded Help File and New Lower Price Make Aton TN3270 an Excellent Addition to Mobile Software Tools for Anyone Who Needs to Access Corporate Mainframe Systems on Pocket PCs

Los Altos Hills, CA - March 1, 2005 - Aton International, Inc., Specialists in Mobile Device Integration, Data Access and Smart Client software, today announced an upgrade to Aton TN3270 for Windows XP Notebooks, Tablet PCs and Desktops. This upgrade features an expanded Help File with a connection troubleshooting guide and other tips for using the software.

With a new price of $19.98 USD per single copy, this very affordable software is available for immediate purchase and download from the company's web site, www.aton.com. Free installation support is still available. Enterprise-wide licenses, ISV Embedded licenses and Source Code licenses are also available from the company.

Free 30 day trial software is available for download at the Aton International website. This upgraded version of Aton Connect for Windows XP Notebooks, Tablet PCs and Desktops is targeted at IT professionals, corporate sales managers, large medical system health care providers, college and university administrators and other who want real time access to mainframe data at a very low cost.

Aton Connect for Windows XP combines a .NET component with a user interface that looks like the screen of a TN3270 terminal. The software can be used to view mainframe data in two ways:

1. For individuals, to download it directly to view mainframe data in the traditional 3270 "green screen" format.
2. For IT developers, to use the .NET component with the Developers Edition to build a .NET application that displays data in a more user friendly fashion.

Aton Connect for Windows XP has been certified by independent testing as meeting the requirements for the "Verified for Windows XP" designation. Aton International offer free installation support for this product. For enterprises needing help with integrating the .NET component into a custom application, Aton also offers very affordable service packages that include free licenses for Aton products. For more information about Aton's "free license" offer, contact Charles Wilde at 800-833-0835 in the US and Canada.
